Facts and Fancies

By Frank Fairborn

The Submarine Menace:

Fifty-five ships were put down by German submarines the week before last. This was the official Admiralty report for the week.

The large number of ships sunk in the second last week of April, three months after the second German submarine policy was put in force, raised consternation in England, and no wonder. The English people and Britons everywhere were led to believe that the Admiralty had got the better of the submarines and that instead of an increasing number of ships being sunk each week, that the number would gradually decrease, but just the opposite is the case.

There is no one to blame for this condition of affairs but the stupidity of the Admiralty. There is a way by which the German submarine menace can easily be overcome. The way has been pointed out to the Admiralty, but they are too slow moving and too obstinate in their methods to adopt it.

There is just one way to overcome the submarine menace and that is to organize the shipping to and from England and France into fleets, with each ship in the fleet carrying a gun and the whole fleet accompanied by chasers and destroyers and where possible, a cruiser.

It is a well-known fact that the submarine commanders will steer straight clear of armed vessels. The lives of a submarine crew hangs by a thread, and while the men in these submarines are, no doubt, brave and reckless, yet they will not take unnecessary chances and they will steer clear of armed vessels and chasers and destroyers, whenever they can.

A fleet of twenty boats, each boat carrying a gun, and the fleet accompanied by destroyers and chasers would be practically immune from attack and even if the fleet was attacked the moment that one torpedo was fired by a submarine the whole fleet and its escorts would be prepared for action and the submarine would soon make itself scarce, even if it was able to escape without being sunk.

If Great Britain was able, in spite of her unpreparedness, to organize an army so powerful that it could not only hold its own in France, but is steadily gaining ground, then Great Britain could organize its shipping so as to defy the submarines.

The whole trouble is that the Admiralty is tied to its traditions. It is moving, not as a living, up-to-date, live organization, but as a machine, and it is trying to fight ideas of 1917 with ideas of 1917.

It is a well-known fact that the German submarines have been put forward by the Germans, and has been the Germans at their own game, but the navy has fallen down on every new thing that has been up against them.

The North Sea and the English Channel is supposed to be practically covered with chasers and destroyers hunting for submarines, and yet, in spite of the innumerable boats of this kind that are constantly patrolling these waters, fifty-five ships are sunk and presumably not a chaser, nor destroyer in sight. If three-fourths of the chasers and destroyers were used for accompanying fleets, the shipping would be preserved and the chasers would be earning their money.

We have boasted, and we have fed ourselves on the boasts of the British navy, and while we are constantly boasting it and while we are constantly dependent upon it, we must acknowledge that the British Navy in some particular cases, has fallen down very severely.

Ramsgate and Dover are English ports right across the Channel from Ostend and Zeebrugge, and yet the British Navy allows a fleet on several occasions to sail across the thirty miles of intervening waters between Ostend and Dover and between Zeebrugge and Ramsgate, and actually bombard the two towns and not a British ship in sight, and only by the merest accident one night did two destroyers, The Swift and The Broke happen on the German fleet and sink several of them and put the rest to flight.

Ships of the British Navy know how to fight and the sailors on the British ships can lick their own weight in wildcats, but they never happen to be in the right place at the right time.

One would consider with the size of the British navy that it would be a matter of sheer impossibility for a German warship to get within sight of English soil without being blown to pieces, yet not less than ten times during the past year have German warships sailed right up within a few miles of the British coast and bombarded towns. The idea of having being bombarded by German warships which got away safely, should stand as a lasting disgrace to the men at the head of the British Navy.

The idea of the Admiralty boasting that in the attack of the German warships on Ramsgate, that only one person was killed and that most of the shells fell in open country. They should be ashamed to announce it. Had they blown the German warships to pieces with shells from the British warships, then they should have done some boasting, but to announce that only one man was killed in the raid, was the announcement of their own weakness, because as far as the British Navy was concerned, there might have been a thousand, or ten thousand men killed in the same raid. There was nothing to prevent the Germans from blowing the town to pieces, except a bit of luck.

If the German warships could sail across the English Channel and bombard Dover and Ramsgate, what is to prevent the British warships from sailing across the Channel and bombarding Ostend and Zeebrugge and blowing the wharfs, docks and submarines into the eternal bow-wow? That's what I want to know.

American Citizens in Our Army—

A recent New York Herald despatch from London, which has been copied in some Canadian newspapers contains the astonishing statement that there are 22,000 American citizens in the Canadian forces fighting on the Western front. Of the hosts of the people across the line who have read this statement many doubtless believe it to be true, not because it accords with any previous information they had on the subject, but because the wish is father to the thought. Possibly, too, some of the more headless of our own people under whose eyes the item came would accept it at its face value. But it is grotesquely untrue. Brigadier-General Mason shows what a foolish tale it is. The General speaks by the book. He has given much attention to the subject of recruiting in this country, and in preparing speeches made from his place in the Senate he has looked closely into the official figures pertaining to our Expeditionary Force. He shows that at the highest computation the number of American citizens in the total 400,000 men we have under arms cannot be more than 7,500, less than half of whom are now in France. If the writer of the despatch in question had been governed by scrupulous regard for truth to the same extent as he was governed by the desire to please newspaper readers in the United States he would have toned down his figures nearly 90 per cent. He talks about the 22,000 being withdrawn from the Canadian forces and strengthened by 16,000 to be sent from the United States to form an American army corps. When they begin to muster out the American citizens from our Expeditionary Force it will be found that General Mason's estimate of their number is at least large enough.

It is with a great degree of satisfaction that Canadians have read the letter of Brigadier-General Mason published in the leading papers recently, refuting the claim of the New York Herald to the effect that 22,000 United States citizens are fighting in France with the Canadian units. According to actual statistics compiled by Brigadier-General Mason, the number of United States citizens with the Canadian units, is 7,500, with less than half this number in France. In the same letter Brigadier-General Mason says that he has been told that New York papers were sold the other day in the streets to the cry of "Great American Victory at Vimy." If this latter statement is true, it is typical of the spirit of bragadocio and selfishness ever uppermost as a characteristic of the United States, and in view of the belated entry of the States into the war for the freedom of the world from tyranny and oppression, it would seem rather unreasonable to try and wrest the glory of victory from our Canadian boys who have fought and suffered for three years.

WALL PAPER AND ITS EFFECTS

ON THE NERVES

"Have you ever felt rested after sitting in a certain room for an hour? There must be some reason—a cause before an effect. Study yourself for a cause for nerves, if you in fact you have them, and ask yourself these questions: What is your favourite color—the color that fills you with delight? Do you have that of your favourite color in your rooms?"

"One woman always loved blue in her dress and flowers, yet she had red paper in her rooms. No wonder she had 'nerves,' for there are so many people who are affected as much by color as there are those affected by sound."

"Who loves the screaming of the moon whistle, unless it is the boy who is hungry? So it is with discordant tones in your home. It is a well-known fact that on the walls of insane hospitals red is never used."

No matter what the style I am paper, go and choose the tint that rests you, have your home made harmonious with light, soft tints, and see how much more cheerful the whole family will be.

"Think of trying to sleep in a room hung with flaming red poppies, when there should be soft pale tints with out figures, white if possible, where one spends so many hours. 'Nerves' are largely the result of discord and lack of proper harmony, also why a nervous attack when things go wrong?"

"Danish ugly takes from your home; use only simple furnishings that make your home restful, and when you are uncomfortable in a room, begin studying that rosin. Begin with the paper. Do your eyes follow the pattern or the figure? If so, have it taken off and choose a paper that rests your eyes and thus soothes your nerves. It will pay you many times over, far more than the cost of the paper, even if it be an expensive one, for anything that soothes or restores health is cheap, no matter what it costs."—Every woman's World."

OBITUARY

DEATH OF BARTHOLOMEW O'CONNELL

Bartholomew O'Connell, a well-known resident of South GRIMSBY, passed away Thursday night at the residence of his son, John, 119 Glenview avenue, Hamilton. For over 50 years deceased was a prosperous farmer in that district. He was born in Cahirciveen, county Kerry, Ireland, 37 years ago, and came to Canada in the year 1851. For the last two years he has been living retired with his son in Hamilton. He leaves to mourn his demise, besides his wife, two sons, William of South GRIMSBY, and John, of Hamilton. The funeral took place Monday morning from the residence of his son, to St. Ann's church, thence to Holy Sepulcher for interment.

DEATH OF MISS MARGARET MOGGACH

Miss Margaret Moggach, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Moggach, of the township of Clinton, and sister of Mr. Fred Moggach of the Post Office Staff, GRIMSBY, passed away at the Memorial Hospital, Niagara Falls, N.Y., on Saturday, April 28, 1917, at the age of twenty-three years.

Miss Moggach, who was a very estimable young lady, was training for a nurse at the Memorial Hospital when she contracted pneumonia and in spite of the best medical aid passed away last Saturday afternoon.

The funeral took place on Tuesday May 1, from the Presbyterian Church, Bensenville, where the services were held, to Mount Osborne Cemetery, Bensenville, where the interment took place. Services were conducted at the church and graveside by the Rev. Mr. Loring.

The deceased lady is survived by three brothers at home, Bert, Fred, and Henry, and two brothers in the trenches in France. She is also survived by her parents.

DEATH OF MRS. WILLIAM OLMSTEAD

The many friends and relatives of Mrs. William Olmstead were grieved to learn of her death on Monday, April 30, at her home on Livingston Ave., GRIMSBY, at the age of sixty-six years.

The deceased lady was a daughter of the late Thomas Muir and a sister of Mrs. Robert H. Walker of South GRIMSBY and T. D. Muir, GRIMSBY. She had lived practically all her life in the township of North GRIMSBY with the exception of fifteen years when she resided in South GRIMSBY.

Mr. and Mrs. William Olmstead had been married for forty-four years, nearly half a century. She is survived by her husband, one brother, one sister, three sons, George and Russell of GRIMSBY, and William of Buffalo, and one daughter, Mrs. Joe Walker, of GRIMSBY.

The deceased lady was an earnest and consistent member of the Presbyterian Church.

The funeral is taking place this afternoon from her late residence to Queen's Lawn Cemetery, services being conducted at the house and graveside by the Rev. L. H. Currie of St. John's Presbyterian Church, and the Rev. T. Radcliffe of the GRIMSBY Baptist Church.

LIEUT. PATTISON HAS NARROW ESCAPE

To have the shell from a German "Archie" explode directly beneath his machine when he was flying at a great height, and yet escape without sustaining personal injury, was the remarkable experience of Flight-Lieutenant Charles Pattison, twenty-year-old son of F. G. H. Pattison, of GRIMSBY, in France recently.

Lieut. Pattison, who has been attached to the Royal Flying Corps for eighteen months or more, has done duty on the border of Switzerland and the English Channel. He recently took part in a great air raid and succeeded in bringing down two of the enemy's machines. On another occasion his face and one hand were badly frozen when he was flying near the Swiss border. His most thrilling experience of all was when he was flying over the German lines. A shell from a German anti-aircraft gun exploded almost underneath his machine. The flames from the shell blackened the entire machine. Had he been flying a few feet lower the shell would have broken right in his midst and he would have met inevitable death. As it was he flew back to his aerodrome with his machine looking more like a giant raven than a belligerent aircraft.

OUR WEEKLY HEALTH BULLETIN

Conducted by Dr. R. A. Alexander, M. O. H.

Hygiene and Sanitation.

We use the word "Hygiene" to include the care of the person, in contrast to "Sanitation" which deals with the surroundings or environment. We speak of the hygiene of the teeth, of sleep, of bathing, exercise, food or drink, and of those conditions intimately associated with the body.

We speak of sanitation of the home, of schools, of farms. Sanitary Science considers the air, soil, climate, and our surroundings as they affect health. Sanitation is largely impersonal, hygiene is personal.

"Contagious" and "Infectious"

These are popular terms which are not scientific or precise. A "contagious" disease is one that is readily communicable or "catching." The word is derived from a Latin word meaning "to touch" and was at one time confined to diseases which were supposed to be "caught" from one having the disease by personal contact.

An "infectious" disease is usually considered to be one not conveyed directly and obviously as in the case of contagious diseases, but indirectly through some other medium. Typhoid fever was often taken as a type of infectious disease.

These distinctions are entirely artificial, and serve no useful purpose. Infectious diseases may be contagious, and contagious diseases infectious, and both terms leave out a large class of communicable diseases conveyed by insects.

The word "communicable" is therefore much better and broader in every way, and should be used in preference to either of the above terms.

A "communicable" disease is one caused by a specific "virus" transferred in a great many ways. Thus the virus in Diphtheria is the diphtheria bacillus; in Typhoid fever, Typhoid bacilli; in Malaria, the Malaria parasite carried by mosquitoes. There is a great difference in the ease with which different diseases are conveyed. Measles and Small Pox are conveyed readily from one person to another, while others are communicated with difficulty. Tuberculosis is communicable, and yet a very long time may elapse between the time of infection and the development of symptoms of the disease.

We can control our environment to a great extent, and can for instance destroy insects like mosquitoes which carry Malaria and Yellow Fever, or destroy lice which convey Typhus Fever. But it is very difficult to control man himself, because it requires his own consent. It is therefore easier to stamp out Yellow Fever through a campaign against the disease-carrying mosquito, than it is to stamp out Typhoid Fever which is carried and spread from one human being to another.

Warnings

Complaint has been made that the butchers and others have been dumping fermenting and putrefying refuse on the public dump. This practice must be stopped.

All decaying and putrescent refuse must be burned or buried.

The legal penalty will be enforced in every case of infraction of the law.

PTE. WM. COWAN IN HOSPITAL

The following letter was received last week by Mrs. Wm. Cowan, Ontario St., from her son, William, overseas, in which he describes the fighting at Vimy Ridge, and how he received his wound.

He also tells of meeting his brother Ewert, just one week before the latter was killed.

The Cottage Hospital, Fleetwood Road, Southport, England, April 12, 1917.

Dear Mother—Just a few lines to let you know I have been slightly wounded, but not at all serious, so don't worry when you get this letter.

No doubt you have read long before this what the Canadians did on Easter Monday, April 9, when the big advance started on the Western Front. We took up our position at Vimy Ridge, one of the German's greatest strong-holds, on Sunday night and Monday morning at 4 o'clock we went over the top with the best of luck. Our objective being 1200 yards, which was gained with very little opposition. It was just a few yards from our objective where I got hit in the small of the back with a heavy piece of shrapnel, which by luck, struck on my trenching shovel, which hung on the back of my equipment, thus saving the shrapnel from cutting. Although bruised, I am getting along fine and will soon be alright again.

We are in a beautiful hospital, with all the comforts a fellow could wish for, and the nurses are just fine, so there is no need to worry, as I am well looked after.

The ward I am in is bright and sunny. The furnishings, which are grand, were donated by the Methodist Church Sunday School of Southport, for the purpose of wounded soldiers.

I received your letter on Easter Sunday as well as some others, and one from Miss Jenkinson and Mr. Warruthers, so you can tell them I got them O.K. and will answer in a few days.

On Sunday, April 1, just a week before I was wounded, I attended a very nice church service, and along about six o'clock, who should I see but Ewert. So we met at last, and it sure was a great surprise to us. I was certainly glad to see him. We had a good long talk. He is looking fine.

Well, I think I have said enough for this time. Remember me to Mrs. Clark, Mrs. Jenkinson, also Mr. and Mrs. Whitaker.

I hope you are getting along alright and are not worrying any. I must close now, hoping this will find you in the best of health.

Your loving son,
WILL.

Miss Nellie Lucas of Silver Lake, Oregon, writes: "My father developed a sore on his face which became very swollen and painful. We tried numerous remedies, and several doctors attended him, but the sore got no better, and the doctor said the only hope of curing it was an operation. Father determined, however, that he would first try Zam-Buk."

"Even after the first few applications of this wonderful balm he felt great relief. Gradually the pain was ended, the inflammation was all drawn out, the swelling disappeared and the sore was soon healed."

AND NOW FOR SEEDING

Soil Should Be Allowed to Warm Up Before Planting.

SOME FIRST CROPS TO PUT IN

Beans are a splendid Food Product to Grow This Year—How to Proceed in Several Lines.

(By E. C. JOHNSTON, Vegetable Specialist, Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

Having discussed the methods of preparing the garden soil to receive the seed we now turn to the sowing of the seed itself. There is no need to hurry the sowing of the seed. Better results will be obtained if the amateur gardener will wait until the soil is warm and easily worked. The vegetables discussed are arranged as nearly as possible according to the time they should be planted.

LETTUCE. Lettuce is grown for its leaves, and is our best known salad plant. It is a short-season plant, and is often grown to follow or precede another crop. It is quite hardy and may be planted quite early in the spring, grown to maturity, and followed with a tender crop such as tomatoes, or it may be planted between any plants of the cabbage family. It is a good plan in a small garden to plant only a few feet at one time and follow this with successive plantings made every ten days or two weeks until July 1st. The lettuce seed may be sown in rows comparatively thin at a depth of a quarter of an inch. The plants should be thinned to stand two inches apart.

If one desires large single heads of lettuce the plants should be thinned to stand from six to eight inches apart. The thinning may be transplanted to another part of the garden.

RADISH. The radish plant is grown for its roots, which are eaten raw just as soon as they are large enough to use. It is quite hardy, and may be planted very early in the spring. Radishes are frequently sown with other crops which are not such rapid growers, such as parsnips. They should, however, be sown before the parsnips or other crops need the ground. Successive plantings are also advised for this crop. Radish seed may be planted in rows, four inches apart or broadcasted, the depth preferred being from a quarter to half an inch only. Radish as a general rule require no thinning, and the soil between the rows should be kept loose with the hoe. A crop of winter radish may be obtained if the seed is sown about the first of August. These should be thinned out to three inches apart.

SPINACH. Spinach is a short season crop which is grown to provide table greens. The plant matures in about six weeks from planting, and seed should be sown very early in the spring, as the plants run to seed during the hot summer months. The seeds may be planted in rows or broadcasted, and should be sown at a depth of one half inch. Successive plantings may be made if so desired. When the leaves are large enough to use they may be pulled off or the whole plant may be cut from the root.

ONION. The onion is grown for seasoning, pickling, and for eating raw. A large percentage of onions stored for winter use are grown from seed planted in the soil very early in the spring. The soil should be rich, moist and well drained, but fresh manure is not the best to apply. The seeds should be planted at a depth of about one-half inch, and the rows should be from twelve to fourteen inches apart. The seed should be planted very thinly so that there will be no need for extra thinning of the onions. Cultivation should cease when the onion tops are such a size as to prevent any work. In the fall when the tops are about two-thirds dried down the onions should be pulled and laid in windows so arranged that the bulbs are covered with the tops of the onions. This prevents any sunburn which causes considerable trouble in storage. After they have been kept in this position for five or six days they may be gathered up and placed in a slat box or basket and tied up some way so that the roots will not get at them and the wind will have plenty of chance to circulate around the bulbs. The tops may be removed from the onions at this time if so desired, or they may be left on. Dutch sets may be planted as close together as they will stand in a straight row very early in the season. They should be barely covered with soil, which should be well firmed by tamping on it, and the green onions should be pulled as soon as they are ready for use.

PEAS. Peas may be planted very early in the season, and for the early crop the seed should be sown in a furrow of two inches deep and the seeds placed an inch apart. Some arrangements should be made so that the pea vines will have some support. Limbs of trees or chicken wire may be used for this purpose, as the vines will cling to this for support and will be kept up from the ground. This support should be set preferably at the time of planting. This soil should be drawn up around the vine.

BEANS. Generally speaking, it is not a good practice to add fresh manure to the soil where one expects to grow beans. They prefer a moist, deep loam. The seeds should be planted fairly early in the spring. The rows being at least eighteen inches apart. A furrow two inches deep may be made with the corner of a hoe and the seeds placed from two to three inches apart in the bottom of this furrow. Another way which is sometimes followed in planting beans is to make holes two inches deep twelve inches apart and in each hole three or four seeds be placed. It is always advised not to touch the plant when they are wet.

A FROM NURSE

Many Nurses in Canada and Elsewhere Suffer from the Same.

Chatham, Ont. Dr. Pierce's

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a wonderful help to many of them. I never knew of a case where it failed. I have a patient who is using it now and she is doing fine since taking it. I have taken it myself and got the very best results. I consider it the best medicine there is to-day for women who are ailing. —Mrs. Fern Moore, 30 Dunn St., Chatham, Ont.

THAT WEAK BACK

Accompanied by pain here and there—entire nervousness—depression—may be faint spells, rills or spasms—all are signs of distress for a woman. She may be growing from girlhood into womanhood—passing from womanhood to motherhood—or later suffering during middle life, which leaves no many weeks of women. At any or all of these periods of a woman's life she should take a tonic and receive prescribed for just such cases by a physician of vast experience in the treatment from which women suffer.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has successfully treated more cases in the past 30 years than any other tonic remedy.

It can now be had in sugar-coated tablets form as well as in the liquid. Sold by medicine dealers or trial box by mail on receipt of 50 cents in stamps. Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y.

"In the nation's honour, heed!
Acquit yourselves like men.
As workers on the land, do your duty with all your strength!"
—Lloyd George.

THE CRISIS

France, England and Italy in peace times did not depend upon America but on Russia, Roumania and Bulgaria for most of their breadstuffs. With these sources closed the crisis of the hour demands that we see that our soldiers and the Motherland are fed.

Everyone in Great Britain has been put on limited rations: meat is prohibited one day a week and the making of cakes and pastry has been stopped. Further restrictions are anticipated.

Bread has gone to 28c per four-pound loaf in England, for the first time since the Crimean War.

Lord Devonport, British Food Comptroller, proposes taking authority to search the houses of Great Britain to prevent food hoarding.

Forty million men, less the casualties, are now on active service.

Twenty million men and women are supporting them by service in other war activities.

In the last analysis, the land is bearing this burden.

One million tons of food-carrying ships have been torpedoed since February 1st, 1917.

Germany's hope for victory is in the starvation of Britain through the submarine.

Canada's sons will have died in vain if hunger compels the Motherland's surrender.

The land is waiting—the plough is ready—will we make the plough mightier than the sword?

Will we help the acres to save the flag?

World-Hunger Stares Us in the Face

David Lubin, representative of the United States to the International Institute of Agriculture—maintained by forty Governments—reports officially to Washington that the food grains of the world on March 31st, 1917, showed a shortage of 150,000,000 bushels below the amount necessary to feed the world until August, 1917. He declares it is beyond question that unless a greater acreage is put in crop in 1917 there will be WORLD-HUNGER before the 1918 crop is harvested.

The failure of the grain crop in the Argentine Republic, which is ordinarily a great grain-exporting nation, resulted in an embargo being placed, in March, 1917, upon the export of grains from that country to avert local famine.

The United States Department of Agriculture, in its official report, announces the condition of the fall wheat crop (which is two-thirds of their total wheat crop) on April 1st, 1917, to be the poorest ever recorded and predicts a yield of 244,000,000 bushels below the crop of 1915. The 1916 crop was poor. Even with favorable weather, the wheat crop of the United States is likely to be the smallest in thirty-five years, not more than 64% of the normal crop.

Under date of April 10th, Ogden Armour, executive head of Armour & Company, one of the world's largest dealers in food products, stated that unless the United States wishes to walk deliberately into a catastrophe, the best brains of the country, under Government supervision, must immediately devise means of increasing and conserving food supplies. Armour urged the cultivation of every available acre. The food shortage, he said, is world-wide. European production is cut in half, the Argentine Republic has suffered droughts. Canada and the United States must wake up!

Hunger
Tightening
His Grip

—New York Evening Mail

People are starving to-day in Belgium, in Serbia, in Poland, in Armenia, in many quarters of the globe. Famine conditions are becoming more wide-spread every day.

On these alarming food conditions becoming known, President Wilson immediately appointed a Food Comptroller for the United States. He selected Herbert C. Hoover, to whom the world is indebted as Chairman of the International Belgium Relief Commission for his personal direction of the distribution of food among the starving Belgians.

Mr. Hoover is already urging sacrifice and food restrictions, for, as he states, "The war will probably last another year and we shall have all we can do to supply the necessary food to carry our Allies through with their full fighting stamina."

The Problem for Ontario

The land under cultivation in Ontario in 1916 was 365,000 acres less than in 1915.

Consider how much LESS Ontario produced in 1916 than she raised in 1915:

	Year	Acres	Bushels	1916 DECREASE	Bushels
Fall Wheat	1916	704,067	14,542,000	105,315	9,794,961
	1915	811,145	24,337,011
Barley and Oats	1916	525,880	12,388,949	24,432	7,504,160
	1915	550,318	19,893,109
Peas and Beans	1916	95,542	1,243,979	31,401	799,070
	1915	126,943	2,043,049
Corn	1916	558,232	12,717,072	51,441	9,643,424
	1915	609,673	21,360,496
Potatoes and Carrots	1916	139,383	7,108,179	34,411	5,858,594
	1915	173,794	13,267,023
Mangel-Wurzels and Turnips	1916	42,780	9,766,045	8,006	15,690,308
	1915	50,786	25,356,353

Other crops show as critical decline.

Reports from Ontario on the condition of fall wheat for 1917 are decidedly discouraging.

As there is an average of not more than one man on each hundred acres of farm land in Ontario, the prospects indicate even a still smaller acreage under cultivation in 1917 unless extra labor is supplied.

Food Production is the Greatest Problem the World Faces To-day

Owing to destruction by submarines, ocean ships are scarce.

It is much easier to protect shipping between Canada and England than on the longer voyages from India or Australia.

One vessel can make twice as many trips from Canada to Britain as from India, and four times as many as from Australia.

Therefore, every ton of food stuffs grown in Canada is worth to the Motherland two tons grown in India or four tons grown in Australia.

Why the Call to Canada is So Urgent

If this country does not raise a big crop this year, not only will the people of Canada suffer but the Motherland and her Allies will suffer and their military power will be weakened if not paralyzed. Therefore, the right solution of the present war problem comes back to the farm, as to a foundation upon which our whole national and international structure must be built and maintained.

The Second-
Line
Trenches

—McCay in
The New York
American.

The farmers know that they are the last reserve, and that the soil on which crops are grown is the strategic ground on which wars are decided. To their care is entrusted the base of supplies.

To enable the farm to do the work two factors are essential. The first is Time. Whatever we are to do must be done at once. Nature waits for no man. The second is Labor. Many farmers cannot plant the acres they would because they cannot get the necessary help. Many are afraid to increase their acreage because they fear they would not be able to cultivate and harvest an unusual crop after they have raised it. If they are to do the work that is essential for them to do, the last man in each city, town and village must be mobilized at once.

Every man not on Active Service can help. In every city, town and village are men who, by their training on the farm, or by their present occupation, can readily adapt themselves to farm work. These can render no greater service to the Empire at the present time than by answering the call of the farm. Capable men and boys willing to learn should not allow their lack of farm experience to stand in the way.

Can the employer render a more signal service in this crisis than by encouraging these men to help the farmer to cultivate every available acre, and by making it easy for them to go?

Ontario's farm lands are waiting—the implements are ready—the equipment is complete—the farmer is willing—all he needs is labor.

So short is the world's food supply that without increased production many in Canada must go hungry, and even with enormously increased production we cannot expect cheap food. The world is waiting for our harvest.

If peace should be declared within a year, the food conditions will be no better, for the accumulated hunger of the Central Empires must be met. This will absorb a large part of the world's supply.

We do not know when this war shall cease. It is endless—its lengthening out has paralyzed the thought and conception of all men who thought about it and its possible time of conclusion. Three months—six months, we said; nine months, a year, we said; and yet two years and eight months have passed their long dreary and sanguinary length and there is no man who can tell how long this gigantic struggle may yet last.

Lloyd George, in a letter addressed to farmers throughout the Empire, said:

"The line which the British Empire holds against the Germans is held by those who WORK 'ON THE LAND' as well as by those who fight 'on land and sea. If it breaks at any point it breaks everywhere. In the face of the enemy the women of our Royal naval and mercantile marine and the soldiers gathered from every part of our Empire hold our line firstly. You workers on land must hold your part of our line as strongly. Every full day's labor you do helps to shorten the struggle and brings us nearer victory. Every idle day, all loitering, lengthens the struggle and makes defeat more possible. Therefore, in the nation's honour, heed! Acquit yourselves like men, and as workers on land do your duty with all your strength!"

So, for the honor of Canada's soldiers in France—and for the glory of our New-born Nationhood—let it be said of Ontario's citizens that, in the hour of our greatest need, their response was worthy of their sons.

We owe a great debt to those who are fighting for us.

LIEUT. FRED. SCOTT

marriage record for any young man. Lieut. Scott left for Overseas in February, 1916 with the Sportsman Battalion of Hamilton and had been in France for many months before receiving his death wound.

The heartfelt sympathy of Mrs. and Miss Scott's friends in this disaster go out to them tenfold in this hour of grief, but we know that they will find solace to a small extent at least, in the fact that the one they loved so well did not die for a hopeless cause, but that he gave up his all, his work, his blood and his life, in order that they might live, that the rest of his friends might live and that even the world might live and that peace and happiness. That on in peace and happiness. That they might continue to live and enjoy to its fullest extent the Liberty and Freedom for which he so gallantly fought and died for. Ungrudgingly did he go forth to do his duty. He laid down his life for his mother, his friends and his country. "Greater love hath no man."

To the desolate mother the young boy who died for France has left a message in these noble words: Yet sought they neither recompense nor praise. Nor to be mentioned in another breath. Than their blue-coated comrades whose great days

It was their pride to share—aye, share even to the death! Nay, rather, France, to you they rendered thanks (seeing they came for honor, not for gain). Who, opening to them your glorious ranks Gave them that grand occasion to excel. That chance to live the life most free from stain, And that rare privilege of dying well.

J. E. H. NOLAN

best man at a wedding in Brockville, and it was quite a society event in the eastern Metropolis and of course Mr. Nolan was traveling with the elite. While in attendance at the wedding he stayed at the home of a millionaire and the day after the wedding disappeared with $20,000 worth of his host's diamonds. He was located at Montreal, arrested and sent to trial and sentenced to serve 18 months in the prison farm in Guelph.

Last fall he escaped from the Guelph institution and although a search was made for him he could not be found.

Last week he turned up in England and was placed under arrest while trying to enlist for service in France with a Canadian battalion. He is now in an English jail and will probably stay there for some time to come.

Nolan was a fine appearing, well educated young man and a regular "lady-killer" from away back. He made friends quickly and always seemed to be able to gain admittance into the very best of society. He loved the life of "Wine, woman and song" and his only drawback was a scarcity of funds and a hatred for work.

During the next year or two he will learn what work is, for it's a cliché he will have a steady job "making little ones out of big ones" for some time to come.
